Read the following passage, then answer the questions that follow:

Glasses are an essential tool that helps people see better. A long time ago, people who had trouble seeing had no way to improve their vision. In the 13th century, the first pair of glasses was made of wood and metal in Italy. These early glasses had lenses that helped people who couldn't see things up close. Students and doctors were among the first to use them, as they needed clear vision for reading and writing.

As time passed, more people started to read because books became easier to get after the invention of the printing press in the 15th century. This made glasses even more important. In the 17th century, new types of glasses were made to help people who had trouble seeing things far away. This allowed more people to use glasses for different vision problems.

By the 20th century, glasses became more comfortable and stylish. New materials like plastic made them lighter, and different designs made them fashionable. Today, glasses are still widely used, even though there are other options like contact lenses or eye surgery. They have become a fashion. Many people choose frames that reflect their personal style. Glasses have come a long way, from being simple tools to becoming a common part of daily life for millions of people around the world.

Furthermore, advancements in lens technology have made glasses more effective for various vision problems. New features, such as blue light filtering lenses, protect eyes from screens. Overall, glasses are essential and useful in modern life.
