VI. Reading Comprehension (110 Marks)Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow.

110

Football is one of the most popular sports in the world today, followed and played by millions of people across different countries and cultures. It is more than just a game; it is a global language that brings people together. Although modern football looks highly organised and professional, its history goes back hundreds of years.

Many historians believe that early forms of football existed in ancient civilisations. In China, a game called Cuju was played over two thousand years ago, where players kicked a leather ball into a small net. Similar games were also found in ancient Greece and Rome, where soldiers used ball games as part of their physical training. These early types were simple and had fewer rules than modern football.

Modern football began to develop in England during the nineteenth century. At that time, different schools and clubs played the game using their own rules, which often caused confusion and disagreements. To solve this problem, the Football Association (FA) was founded in 1863. The FA introduced common rules that helped organise the game and made it easier for teams to compete fairly.

As football became more popular, it started to spread beyond England. The first official international football match was played in 1872 between England and Scotland. In 1904, the International Federation of Association Football (FIFA) was created to manage international competitions and promote the game worldwide. The first FIFA World Cup was held in Uruguay in 1930, which was the beginning of global football competitions.

Over the years, football has continued to grow and evolve. Today it is played at a faster speed because of new technology, better training, and modern stadiums, which makes it more exciting. Television coverage has played a major role in spreading football's popularity, allowing fans to follow their favourite teams and players from different parts of the world.

Football is not only a sport but also an important part of modern life and a powerful cultural and economic force. It teaches teamwork, discipline, and respect, while creating unforgettable moments for fans. It also brings communities together, supports jobs and businesses, and gives young people positive role models. From small local fields to huge international stadiums, football remains a game that unites people of all ages and backgrounds.

A) From a, b, c, or d, choose the correct answer. (5x10 = 50 Marks)

Any reasonable answer based on the passage is to be accepted.

VII. Summary Making (60 Marks)Read the following text and then do as required.

Volunteering in the community is a valuable experience for teenagers because it offers many benefits. First, it helps teenagers build important life skills such as teamwork, communication, and responsibility. It also makes them more compassionate because they learn to understand other people's needs and problems. In addition, taking part in different volunteer activities can help them discover new hobbies and possible future careers. Finally, volunteering helps teenagers feel proud when they see the positive effects of their efforts. For these reasons, many schools continue to support youth volunteering and encourage students to join community projects.

In a paragraph of not more than FOUR sentences ONLY, summarise and paraphrase the above text in answer to the following question.

"What are the benefits of volunteering?"

The answer should include the following FOUR ideas:

- Helping teenagers build important life skills such as teamwork, communication, and responsibility
- Making them more compassionate / understanding of other people's needs and problems
- Helping them discover new hobbies and possible future careers
- Helping teenagers feel proud when they see the positive effects of their efforts
